Car of the week this week goes to Ben Casey's 2002 Volkswagen Passat also known as the “Dink Mobile.” His car got this name by the sound it makes when it's locked. This car is famous throughout the class of 2019. The “Dink Mobile” is red with a v6 engine, but Ben has not yet upgraded it. Ben was given this car by his mother in July of 2017, and he loves it! Fun facts about the car include the 6 disk cd player built into the trunk, it has over 205,000 miles, and Ben loves this car! Thank you, and drive safe!

Game Of the Week

By: Eddie Holmes

From the opening moments, Destiny 2 delivers Dominus Ghaul, an excellent antagonist whose cruelty earns our fury by taking away everything that had been built up in Destiny and its expansions, including our Guardians' Light. The campaign that follows is filled with brilliant cut scenes that give the cast an opportunity to show great emotional range, and you can hear the sadness and determination in their voices. Zavala (played by Lance Reddick) is unwavering in his plan to assault Ghaul, while Ikora (Gina Torres) seems distraught and near the point of giving up. That context gives both new and returning players a sensible reason to climb the Light-level based power ladder, whether for the first time or all over again. It kept me moving forward through fun missions set in eye-catching environments, including the exhilarating penultimate mission.
